561

End of Persian War.
Frank kingdom divided between CHLOTNAIR'S four sons.

Chlothar (Lothair) youngest son of Clovis, most of the blood, survived his brothers, took the severest measures of surviving their offspring and died sole King of the Franks in 561, fifty years after his father.

The kingdom was once again divided in four between Chlothar's surviving sons, the eldest dying in

567. Eruntram took the central Burgundy, Chilpéric the north and west (Neustria),
and Sigibert the Rhenish and Max-ianish territory (known as Austrasia).
A bloody quarrel broke out between Sigibert and Chilpéric. Eruntram effected a brief reconciliation.

The Langobards poured into Italy and were threatening Provence.
